At the last regular session of the Legislature the State entered into a new agreement with most of them, and in the Omnibus Bill made lavish appropriations to some of these and other railroads, but agreed that none of the roads should be sold unless they for "two consecutive" years failed to pay the State interest. If a a road for we consecutive years after the making of the new agreement failed, then it might be sold. None of them have since that time failed for two consecu-tive years, and they can't yet be le-gally sold. It is very questionable whether they can be rold at all legally. If there is any doubt about it, the State is not likely to make much by the sale. It is hard to say whether there has been most roguery or dunder-headism in the Legislature about railroads in Tennessee. The Edgefield road owed the State $1,232 804, or $117,-804 more than the whole cost of its con-struction, and it never paid a dollar into the State Treasury toward the interest on its loan, but the Legislature made an arrangement to give It $-00,000 to help It build a road in Kentucky, at the same time stipulating that it should not be sold unless it falled to pay its interest for two consecutive years. The Clarkaville road owed the State $1,468,250 and has been made one of the main arteries of travel in the State, but for some reason did not get an appropriation under the Omnibus Bill, and may perhaps be liable to be sold. There may be an arrangement by which under such sale the Nashville and Louisville Railroad Company may buy it at a great bargain. Quien sabe! The Northwestern road, owing the Sinte $3,255,000 never had been able to make even rul-ning expenses, but $550,000 more was loaned to it, and a stipulation made that it should not be sold unless it falled have changed foes to friends. Mr. Burlingame, by his dignified course, and feeling the grandeur and importance of the trust confided to him, had conducted himself in such a manner as to disarm opposition and create, no only a favorable impression for China, but for the United States; for while acting as representative of the Emperor of China, his dignified bearing and progres sive ideas exhibited him as a true type of the representative American.
